Joining a Trade Union

By joining a trade union, you become a part of a movement of millions of working people improving our working conditions through unified action.

The UNISON branch at the University of Brighton represents all non-academic members of staff including technicians, catering workers, caretakers, and administrators.

Our union works on the principle that an injury to one is an injury to all, and that we have more influence the larger we are.

Throughout history trade union activists fought for the workplace rights which many take for granted today. The efforts of trade unions have helped secure the rights which make our university a good place to work, including national minimum wages, paid leave, and parental leave.

By joining a union you can be reassured that you have contributed to the welfare of fellow workers.
