

University of Brighton

Degree apprenticeships

What are degree apprenticeships?

A job with a study programme attached, which leads to a university degree

WORK+WAGE+STUDY

How to get started

Look at the range of apprenticeship standards available.

www.instituteforapprenticeships.org/apprenticeship-standards

The University of Brighton offer apprenticeships in many sectors including business and management, construction and the built environment, health and science, and teaching.

www.brighton.ac.uk/apprenticeships

Why do a degree apprenticeship?

Study towards a degree or masters qualification

Get real experience in the work place

Develop your career-specific skills

Earn a wage and have all your tuition paid-for

Not in employment?

Identify which degree apprenticeship programmes you would be interested in

Search and apply for apprenticeship vacancies which are advertised on the government website www.gov.uk/apply-apprenticeship

Contact organisations that you would like to work for - they may consider an apprenticeship

Widen your geographical search to find the right employer

Already working?

Identify which degree apprenticeship programme would suit your job role and needs

Talk to your employer about developing your skills

Contact the University of Brighton Apprenticeship team or ask your employer to contact us

INTERESTED?

For more information about becoming an apprentice contact:

University of Brighton enquiries team
01273 644644

For employer enquiries:

University of Brighton apprentice team apprenticeships@brighton.ac.uk

