

PRODUCE WORLD GROUP

UNIVERSITY OF LINCOLN

NATIONAL CENTRE FOR FOOD MANUFACTURING

A world of opportunity for the budding stars of the future

Do you have what it takes to kick-start your career at Produce World?

The search is on to unearth the next generation of managerial talent here at the Produce World Group. Our Agri-Food Trainee Scheme is the perfect launch pad for anyone serious about forging a successful career with one of the most dynamic and successful growers and suppliers of high quality fresh vegetables in Europe.

The learning framework, the benefits and the opportunities are all in place. The only question is . . . do you have what it takes?

Have you got the appetite?

As well as a passion for food (not too onerous admittedly) you will need:

- 3 A-Levels at grade C or above (or BTEC equivalent)
- To live locally to one of our sites and have access to a car
- To commit to studying for a BSc Hons Degree in Food Manufacture

Don't forget your homework

Our values, our history, what it is that makes us tick and what it is that makes us the best at what we do . . . learn the full Produce World story at produceworld.co.uk/about

Apply now →

Study for a degree while you work

As a successful candidate in our Agri-Food Trainee Scheme, you will experience all aspects of our business and develop skills in technical, marketing, operational, supply chain and commercial activities. Crucially, you'll gain an industry-leading qualification and set off on a fulfilling and exciting career with no student debt.

It is a full-time role, with 10-12 additional learning hours per week plus office-based integrated project work. The package is £14,000 per annum. We will cover all coursework and mentoring – and you will have the prospect of future employment. There are no guarantees, but upon completion a host of possible management roles may be open to you, including those in areas such as technical, manufacturing, new product development, supply chain and commercial and category management.

In partnership with The University of Lincoln

If successful you will begin studying in September 2015 for a Foundation Degree or BSc (Honours) in Food Manufacturing at The National Centre for Food Manufacturing at Holbeach, Lincolnshire. Course study is by distance learning with attended study blocks. You will also study for professional qualifications in agronomy (BASIS) and undertake further programmes with Produce World. Three to five years of part-time study are required. If you have any questions about the scheme, please address them to Mrs Sharon Green at the National Centre for Food Manufacturing, by email to shgreen@lincoln.ac.uk or by telephone on 01406 493000.

A flavour of what you will study at university (depending on options chosen)
Food policy and markets	Food quality management	Technical management
Food science and microbiology	People management	Supply chain management
Food technology and processing	New product development	Business planning
Food engineering	Food analysis	Food automation and control
Agronomy (Basis)	Factory operations	Environmental management

Sow your own seeds of success. Apply now

→ Download the application form at www.lincoln.ac.uk/ncfm/ncfmnews and submit it before 31 March 2015 to shgreen@lincoln.ac.uk Interviews will take place during April.