

Call for applications:

University of Lincoln International Visiting Fellowship in Medieval History

The University of Lincoln is pleased to offer a non-stipendiary Visiting Fellowship in Medieval History.

Applications are invited from international scholars specializing in medieval history. It is anticipated that the Fellowship will be suitable for scholars who wish to have a base in Lincoln for 4-8 weeks, at any point between June 1 and September 15, 2014.

The Fellow will be provided with office space, computer facilities, and a library card.

The University of Lincoln is situated in the medieval city of Lincoln within walking distance of a range of rich medieval archival, literary, and material sources, to which the Fellow will have access.

It is hoped that the Fellow will contribute to the School's research and teaching culture, by offering a seminar or workshop relevant to their research expertise to postgraduates on the MA in Medieval Studies and doctoral programmes.

For information on the MA in Medieval Studies visit

The Fellowship is open to scholars at all career stages.

Applications should be sent by email by March 25, 2014 to Dr Philippa Hoskin: phoskin@lincoln.ac.uk.

Please include the following:

A full curriculum vitae
An outline proposal (of up to 500 words) of a seminar or workshop, or suitable equivalent name and contact details of one referee anticipated start date and requested duration of Fellowship.

Applicants will be notified by April 3 2014
