

Intersectionality: Theory and Practice for Quality Improvement in Healthcare

This themed seminar series intends to bring together scholars, practitioners and activists who are working with feminist Intersectionality theory and feminist ethics in healthcare. The seminars will illustrate how intersectional approaches to healthcare can make an important contribution to knowledge and practice, which is crucial if quality improvement is to promote greater equity of healthcare provision. The speakers will be looking at theoretical, institutional, methodological and 'case study' approaches that speak to the multiplicity of voices who access/provide healthcare.

Wed 15th Dec 2010 @ 13:30-14:45

Prof Margrit Shildrick (Queen's University, Belfast)

"Hybrid bodies and prostheses: the bioethics of identity"

Wed 16th Feb 2011 @ 13:30-14:45

Dr Jo Gilmartin (University of Leeds)

"The impact of reconstructive surgery following massive weight loss on patients' quality of life"

Future dates/speakers:

Wed 16th Mar 2011 @ 13:30-14:45 Dr Ruth Deery (University of Huddersfield)

Wed 13th Apr 2011 @ 13:30-14:45 Prof Nancy Harding (University of Bradford)

Wed 18th May 2011 @ 13:30-14:45 Dr Ulrike Klöppel (Charité University, Berlin)

ROOM: AR 1106, Architecture Building

Staff, students, practitioners and patients/public welcome

Please RSVP your interest to zdavy@lincoln.ac.uk

School of Health and Social Care Seminar Series 2010-2011

Thanks to Foundation for Sociology of Health & Illness